Why Protein Is So Important

Protein is the building block of yourself. It's the building block of your muscles and also is present in the foods that are going to boost your metabolism and fat-burning potential.

Proteins are used every day to keep the body going. Because they're used to develop, grow and maintain just about every part of our bodies — from our skin and hair to our digestive enzymes and immune system antibodies.

Vital organs, muscles, tissues and even some hormones of the body are made from proteins.

Simply put, without proteins life would not exist.

The average person probably needs half his or her body weight in protein a day.

Protein Deficiency?

Some researches revealed that certain proteins play an important, even critical, role in aging, hair loss, increases blood Cholesterol, cancer, obesity, irregular menstrual cycle, acne, heart problems, diabetics.

Minerals:

Many trace minerals like potassium, calcium, zinc, magnesium, manganese, selenium, iron, phosphorus can profoundly effect health and metabolism.

Vitamins:

All living beings need vitamins like pyridoxine or B6, biotin, cobalamin or B12, pantothenic acid, folic acid, inositol, niacin, riboflavin or B2, thiamine B1, tocopherol or vitamin E to carry on metabolic processes.
